The event is organized by Asia Pacific Forum Berlin and partners

Governments in Asia's diverse countries want to develop quality, affordable, universal and patient-centric healthcare. While this general aim is uncontroversial, the ongoing and accelerating digitalization of healthcare infrastructures, the emergence of artificial intelligence and big data applications, the investments of big technology companies and Startups, and the rapid expansion of mHealth will significantly impact healthcare delivery models of the various countries, access to healthcare and patient empowerment. The conference will explore challenges, opportunities and the future transformational changes of healthcare digitalisation in Asia with a global (and German) comparative perspective in mind.
